

Nova Scotia Energy Research and Development Forum 2012

Lori MacLean

Biography

Lori MacLean is the communications advisor for Encana Corporation in Nova Scotia. She oversees Encana's stakeholder relations in Nova Scotia for the Deep Panuke offshore natural gas project.

Part of her work includes the administration of the Deep Panuke Education and Training and Research and Development Fund, the Fund that supports the researchers on the panel today.

Lori is a graduate of Dalhousie University, where she received undergraduate degrees in science and arts, Carleton University in Ottawa where she received her Master of Journalism and the Université de Poitiers in France where she received a diploma in French language studies.

She worked at various news organizations as a journalist including The Kingston Whig-Standard and The Ottawa Citizen before turning her attention to public affairs where she has worked for the Nova Scotia government and the offshore oil and gas industry.

She is based in Halifax, Nova Scotia.